

CALL FOR PAPERS

The CIA & US Foreign Policy: Reform, Representations and New Approaches to Intelligence

Thursday 20 – Friday 21 February 2009

Clinton Institute for American Studies, University College Dublin

Plenary speakers include:

Professor Richard H. Immerman (Professor and Edward J. Buthusiem Family Distinguished Faculty Fellow in History at Temple University, Assistant Deputy Director of National Intelligence for Analytical Integrity and Standards and Analytic Ombudsman for the ODNI)

Professor Richard J. Aldrich (Professor of International Security at the University of Warwick and the author of several books on intelligence and security communities, including The Hidden Hand: Britain, America and Cold War Secret Intelligence)

Recent years have witnessed the largest restructure in the American intelligence community since the early years of the Cold War. This conference will consider the historical and contemporary role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the formulation and implementation of American foreign relations.

We invite papers and panels that address any aspect of the relationship between the CIA and US foreign policy from the creation of the Agency in 1947 up to the present day. There will be a particular, although by no means exclusive, attention to issues of Agency reform, representation and interaction, as well as new approaches to intelligence.
